

But Sony raised its net-profit forecast for the fiscal year by 3 percent to ¥340 billion because of the strong performance of its mobile phone joint venture with Ericsson and one-time gains from the listing of Sony Financial Holdings.

Chubachi also said that in its 2007 fiscal year, Sony's purchasing from Taiwan suppliers, encompassing a wide range of electronic parts like LCD panels, grew 10 to 20 percent from the 2006 fiscal year.
